

IN BLACK & WHITE

ISSUE 57 – 10 SEPTEMBER 2013

FROM THE HEADMASTER

One of the new arch sections added to the West Wing site contains the date stone of 2014 - the end is in sight already. There is a great deal of activity on the site, and when we consider that everything is coming through the front gate, and threading up the narrow roadway next to the library, it is remarkable how effortless it seems to be. Mrs Patterson's classroom stands on the campus equivalent of the Piccadilly Circus, with endless traffic rumbling past when she and her students are trying to work; she at least will be rewarded with a penthouse location in the new building.

Less obvious, but every bit as interesting, is the work going on on the outside of the dining room. Shrouded in its white cloak, our bay window is being restored from the ground up. I had a chance to look at progress last week, and view some of beautifully carved elements awaiting installation, with stonemason Ben Oram.

Last weekend, the College hosted the 40 Year On Reunion, for those who started at College in 1973. One of my clearest memories of 1973 was being in the crowded familiarity of my university college common room watching the All Blacks v Barbarians from Cardiff. As what has often been called the 'greatest try ever scored' started to build, there was pandemonium; even then I knew I was watching one of the great rugby games. I have had the pleasure of meeting several of the players involved in game since, and it should be compulsory viewing for all young players. The re-unionists would have been at College for about six weeks at the time, and I could not resist asking them whether they remembered the game as well. Many did. Over half the entrant year of 1973 turned up, coming from as far away as Paris, New York and Moscow. The group designed their own weekend, starting with a 'reunionists only' dinner which gave the Old Boys an opportunity to enjoy renewing acquaintances, without subjecting their long suffering partners to the initial phase of intense reminiscence. An informal gathering for all on the Saturday night was another success, and we had a good turn-out at Chapel to round off the weekend. One focus for the weekend was the presentation of a trophy for the CBHS/ College 1st XV game, which perhaps surprisingly has not had one despite the long history of the game. The trophy was in memory of Jock Hobbs, who was a member of that year group. It was a pleasure to welcome his wife and daughters to College, who clearly enjoyed the occasion and were moved by the initiative from the 1973 group. Some may have seen the event featured in TV1 News. These reunions are times when people convince themselves everyone else has aged less well than they have, and add extra layers of exaggeration to the exploits of their youth. However, one chap's claim to fame (for which he was expelled, and had not been back to the College since) seemed to be well supported by his peers. It appears having live-in maids in the school is one tradition better for not being 'well maintained.'

Last weekend's 7s tournament was a great success; beautiful weather rewarded Mr Hamilton's and Mr Clarke's fine organisation, and it completed the weekend of various House events. During Sunday, the marquee was delivered and as I write on Monday morning, it is taking shape on the quad; the Ball weekend promises to be both enjoyable and memorable - the first time we have used the quad in this way, and a spectacular setting it will be.

We continue to be surrounded by road cones, which rearrange themselves at intervals to keep us guessing which is the best way around this part of the city. Sometimes we feel like an island, in a sea of the red and white plastic. Of course, there is a real Coney Island in New York, best known for its fun fair. At least we don't have to pay any extra for our mystery tours, and going round in circles.

Mr Simon Leese, Headmaster

40 YEAR ON REUNION

Seventy six old boys from the group that started at College in 1973 turned out for their 40 Years On reunion over the weekend.

It was a great chance to reconnect with old friends, many of whom had not seen each other since they left school. Saturday's morning tea and the presentation of the Jock Hobbs Memorial Trophy made the TVNZ news on Saturday night, with the story recorded by journalist and current parent, Lorelei Mason.

CURRICULUM NEWS

Trial examinations are 'done', and the end of term is fast approaching, so where to from here? We are firmly at the 'business end' of the year. With senior reports due out at the start of the term break, you will find plenty of good advice on what your son needs to do before the final external examinations begin in November.

It is all too easy to find the usual criticism of young people today, with regular portrayals of lazy disrespectful unambitious youth. But that is neither my perception nor my experience, and at this time of year it seems that the more important focus for us as parents and staff is to make sure that our boys understand how to manage their workload and look after themselves. Yes, young people make mistakes and poor choices at times, that is a part of the 'teenage condition'. I believe that our task is to guide and support our boys as they navigate those choices. A few supportive words about the importance of sleep patterns and good diet never go amiss. As human beings we aren't born with an innate knowledge of how to study in either a technical or a self-management sense, and for some it takes longer to develop the attitudes or habits than for others. Those habits of 'persistence' and 'striving for accuracy' have never been more important.

For all parents, but especially for those of junior boys, there are often many questions that surround NCEA. We are still a few years away from receiving our first intake of boys whose parents will have studied and gained qualifications under the current National Qualifications Framework, and NCEA in particular. Housemasters run their own information evenings, and I am always happy to answer phone calls and emails with questions. The Qualifications Authority (NZQA) provides plenty of good information on how the system works, all available free from their website:

<http://www.nzqa.govt.nz/qualifications-standards/qualifications/ncea/understanding-ncea/>

The NZ Council for Educational Research has also just updated and re-issued a very valuable publication titled 'Understanding NCEA', and this can be ordered from their website www.nzcer.org.nz for $19.95.

Junior boys face their own end-of-year examinations in Week 4 of next term, and everything that I have said with regard to senior boys can equally be applied to junior boys. The examinations are important, and boys should be encouraged to treat them seriously, and to approach them with ambition. Reading their class notes the night before an examination is not adequate. Learners need to actively engage with the material that they are studying. Techniques as simple as summarising material, and then trying to expand it back out by adding back in the detail, is often a good start and when combined with application to past problems can create a good base for further learning. There are many memory techniques that can be employed to reinforce the retention of knowledge.

This is a timely segue into one last comment. The whole concept of knowledge has changed. In my student days, knowledge was still largely a matter of 'knowing stuff'. Only at post-graduate level did it become important to be able to 'do something' with that knowledge. Today's world is very different. 'Knowing' is still important, but today it is equally as

JOCK HOBBS MEMORIAL TROPHY

Jock Hobbs was remembered by his former classmates, the class of 1973, at their 40 Year On reunion on Saturday with the presentation of the Jock Hobbs Memorial Trophy to Christ's College and Christchurch Boys' High School. This trophy will be contested at the annual First XV fixture.

Guests at the presentation included Hobbs' wife, Nicky and his three daughters, Emily, Penelope, and Isabelle. Representing past players from Christ's College was his brother-in-law Robbie Deans, and from Christchurch Boys' High School, Jock's old friend, Don Hayes.

Reunion group member Michael Greenslade says, "Jock was an influential member of the year group. He was a well-known New Zealander, but he was also our mate who we went to school with and grew up with. Jock was a competitive person and we are certainly looking forward to seeing the trophy contested between Christ's College and Christchurch Boys' High School each winter."

The trophy was accepted on behalf of the schools by Headmasters Mr Nic Hill (CBHS) and Mr Simon Leese, and was then presented by Nicky Hobbs to the captain of the Christchurch Boys' High School First XV Anty Burnett, the 2013 winner.

Captains of the 2013 1st XV's, Anty Burnett of CBHS and Damian McKenzie of Christ's College.

important to be able to 'do stuff' with that information. In my opinion one of the great strengths of NCEA lies in the demands it places on candidates to take what they know and think deeply about it. In 2005 Jane Gilbert (NZCER) published a book titled 'Catching the knowledge wave', in which she "takes apart many long-held ideas about knowledge and education. She says that knowledge is now a verb, not a noun—something we do rather than something we have—and explores the ways our schools need to change to prepare people to participate in the societies of the future."

This is not the forum in which to discuss the implications for society and the economy, but it certainly reflects that the demands on your boys today, are greater than they were on many of us as students. In my own subject area boys need to learn information about economics, but more importantly they need to be able to apply that knowledge, to think critically, to explain and analyse, to create meaning.

Finally, as we digest the data that we have gathered on boys' subject option preferences for next year, it is timely to note that many Level 2 and 3 subjects have entry pre-requisites placed on them. These are detailed in the Course Handbook. In the Commerce area in particular it is possible that we may need to limit entry to senior courses. Boys need to be aware that their 2013 subject results may have a significant bearing on their ability to enter their desired courses in 2014.

MONTGOMERY BELL ACADEMY

College has an exchange arrangement with the Montgomery Bell Academy in Nashville, Tennessee. Every year we send two Year 12 boys to the USA and in turn host two Montgomery lads later in the year. College boys have had a wonderful experience at Montgomery Bell and recommend the exchange very enthusiastically.

We will be looking for two Year 12 boys to visit this school during late April/early May (the three weeks of the April holidays plus one week of Term 2) in 2014. Therefore, boys currently in Year 11 should consider applying for this opportunity.

The College boys will be hosted by a family and are expected to reciprocate for a month in July/August. If a boarder is selected, then his exchangee will be placed in boarding for that month; however, there will be attendant costs for the host parents.

The parents of the successful applicants will have to pay for the return flights to the host city. School fee arrangements remain unchanged and additional costs will be limited to spending money.

This is a very exciting opportunity for two of our boys. Applicants will need to be of a high calibre in terms of maturity, social skills and academic motivation. If your son would like to apply for this exchange, I will require a letter of application and curriculum vitae from him by the end of Week 8 (Friday 20 September). The selection process will be completed by the end of Week 2 in Term 4.

Visit www.montgomerybell.edu for further information about the exchange programme. Boys and parents are welcome to contact me if they have queries or boys can talk to the 2013 exchangees Angus McKenzie or Edward Roche.

YEAR 10 DANCE

Traditionally, every year the Humanitarian Committee plays host to several social functions in order to raise money for a selected charity. Last week one of these functions was held in the College gym, the Year 10 dance.

The committee has chosen to focus its fundraising efforts in 2013 towards the Ronald McDonald foundation. A great attendance from St Margaret's, Rangi Ruru and the College boys in Year 10 saw a significant sum headed towards this worthwhile charity.

We thank all of those who supported the dance.

Catch cry of all theatre directors! After trial examinations, winter games, 7s, 40 Years On, and the annual parent and annual student balls, it's difficult to see what else we can cram in ... next. But "we do" because, in amongst all the distractions, the serious key competency work has been going on. Reaction 2103.

Self-appointed or "heavily lent upon" directors have assembled casts and crews to present HOUSE DRAMA, knowing that there will be a reaction.

Despite the compulsory nature of most of what they do, more than 160 boys still choose to find the time to do it!

They have worked hard and deserve your support. It will be a great night out, with a wide range of styles and plays to suit a wide range of tastes. Boys are expected to attend on the night of their house's play and to see most of the plays that night. They are expected to wear uniform of the day. We anticipate that each night will be about two and a half hours.

So the varied programme is:

Thursday 12 September @ 5.30pm:

Flower's, Rolleston, Julius, Richards, Condell's

Tuesday 17 September @ 5.30pm:

Corfe, Jacobs, Harper, School, Somes

From the ridiculous to the revolutionary and everything in between.

FROM THE DEVELOPMENT OFFICE

The 2013 Annual Appeal was launched last week. It included an invitation to families, old boys and friends from David Barker, on behalf of the Board of Governors, and Headmaster Simon Leese to join them and make a gift to support the school.

Annual giving is an effective way to make an affordable, tax-deductible donation each year to an area of Christ's College that is meaningful to you. The Board recognises that the financial contribution parents are making to their son's education is already significant. All donations, regardless of the amount, make a difference and are sincerely appreciated.

You can make a gift to be used at the discretion of the school, choose your area of interest or select one of this year's priorities:

- Creating a Digital Learning Support Fund to ensure students and teachers have appropriate hardware, software and equipment to maintain excellence in digital education
- Assisting with the restoration of the Hare Memorial Library

Thank you in advance for your consideration. The collective support of our community for the Annual Appeal enables our students to continue to receive a world-class education at Christ's College. I look forward to keeping you informed of the appeal's progress in the coming weeks.

If you haven't already received your appeal pack, it should be in your mailbox very soon. Further copies are available at the school office and you can find more information and a donations form on the school website.

Old Boy Marcel Gray (Rolleston 11064) continues to give back to Christ's College, a school he considers helped develop the personal qualities that enabled him to achieve professional and sporting success.

A prefect and champion rower at school, Marcel is now Owner Operator of Wainoni PAK'n'SAVE and Deputy Chairman of Foodstuffs South Island Limited. He remains strongly connected to the school, serving on the committee of the Christ's College Old Boys' Association (CCOBA), gives his time each year to host visits from Brian Le Vaillant's accounting classes and is a committed Platinum Sponsor of the rowing club.

Marcel's passion for rowing was ignited at Christ's College. 1989 was a particular highlight when he was in the Junior 8 team that won the National Championship on Lake Ruataniwha and was also a member of that year's successful Maadi Cup squad at Lake Karapiro. When Marcel left school, he went on to row for NZ Universities and coach the sport overseas.

CHRIST'S COLLEGE
CANTERBURY

Old Boy Marcel Gray and George Perkins, the new captain of rowing

"The daily connection that is gained between boarders and dayboys is one of the great memories I always have of College," he says. "Those connections are well kept today. To be able to support and assist in the development of enthusiastic and committed young people is such a great pleasure of life and to be able to give back to the school that showed me that commitment is the key to achieving one's goals. Also - what a highlight to catch up with Brian Le Vaillant annually."

CANTERBURY MODEL EUROPEAN UNION

On Tuesday 20 August, and Wednesday 21 August, six Christ's College boys went to the annual Canterbury Model European Union conference. On Tuesday delegates from each nation and party assembled at the University of Canterbury for a "training" day. David Daley, the New Zealand and Australia ambassador to the EU, gave a lecture about how important the European Union is to us as a nation and the world.

Following this lecture, we were divided into our pre-allocated parties. In each party session, the aim was to bring your country's ideology to the session. We discussed such things as what our party would be pushing for in each committee, and talked about what we thought of the directive. Then, so that we could have an opportunity to mix and mingle, we negotiated with other parties over some decadent pizzas.

The following day we had a quick party meeting to reinstate what views we would be bringing to the committees. Then it was time to have our committee sessions. Here, topics were hotly debated. We discussed things such as "How do we get youth employed?" and "What measures can we instate to keep youth in their jobs?" The committees were much like the select committees in parliament - they achieved little.

After debating the issues at hand, it was time to move to plenary - where every party and every nation assembled to debate the amendments to the directive put forward by the committees. It was again a session of intense debate. Even the Greens had a dance and innuendo-laced introduction for us, in order to convince us that going "au natural" is the best way forward. At the end of plenary we had achieved something special - we had produced a document of no importance, to help governments and the EU to solve the problem of youth unemployment.

And who said kids couldn't solve international crises?

CHOLMONDELEY CHILDREN'S CHARITY

The Cholmondeley Children's Charity was presented with over $7,000 at last Friday's chapel service at Christ's College. The funds were raised during the 2013 Lenten Appeal by the students.

Mr Shane Murdoch, general manager of the charity, was presented the cheque by Head Prefect Harry McCormick. Mr Murdoch told the boys that they had stepped up at an important time for the charity. "You should be very proud of your efforts, and we are certainly proud of the work that we do."

The home allows short stay respite for children who are vulnerable or under threat from distress within their family. Mr Murdoch explained to the boys that there has been a 46% increase in need for the service since the earthquakes. "This is for two reasons. The first being that there is an increase in the types of distress for families because of the earthquakes, and the second is that in many cases other avenues of support are no longer there or are disrupted."

The organisation, which has been operating for 88 years and has supported some 26,000 Canterbury children in that time, is now co-located at Living Springs while their home is rebuilt (due to open in January 2015). The same amount, the other half of the funds raised in the Lenten Appeal, was also presented to the Cricket Live Foundation recently.

TENNIS SEASON

Tennis will be starting again next term as one of the most popular summer sports. Parents and players please be aware that any boy taking tennis as his summer sport option is automatically a FULL member of the Hagley Park Tennis Club. This means that our boys can play inter-club tennis for Hagley Club and no extra membership fees need to be paid. This is beneficial for the school, as the boys will then be coached by our coach, Mark Belcher, and their club coaching will not clash with the school coaching sessions.

If any boys are keen to play in the Hagley interclub tennis teams this season, opening day is September 14 from 9-12 noon. Contact Mark Belcher 0274 986 363

SOUTH ISLAND TOUR CHAMPION

Nine boys travelled to Blenheim at the start of September. All competed fiercely and it was pleasing to watch. Max Beckert has added to his impressive resume in cycling becoming sprint champion as well as overall General Classification winner. The boys were great on tour and I am sure they are very tired. Thanks to Graeme Swanson for all his efforts over the weekend. So we started Tournament week impressively.

The College cycling team to Blenheim was:
Max Beckert, James Munro, Oliver Tyro, Emmerson Cosgrove, George Satterthwaite, Rory Swanson, Joe Hutchinson, Sam Averill and Ben Marshall-Lee.

OSKAR COMPETITION

Christ's College German language students participated in the annual Oskar competition last Friday and were delighted that their play about zombies and hamburgers won. The students were accompanied by language teachers Ms Elaine Tang and Mr Andrew Moore. Mr Moore said, "It was a great afternoon and the students thoroughly enjoyed themselves."

NZ BUSINESS WEEK

Taylor Budge and Sam Doyle recently took part in the New Zealand BusinessWeek held at Palmerston North. The week was an opportunity to learn real business skills in a one week residential programme. During the week the boys were part of a team who formed a virtual company and were required to make decisions about marketing, personnel and production in an effort to grow their business.

The product was a clothing company and the team finished fourth overall. They were provided with a mentor from ANZ. Taylor Budge says, "The team actually finished first for the business initiative, but we weren't so strong at other events, like the theatre sports. The week was excellent and a good opportunity for me to be exposed to a lot of ideas and skills that I hope to take back to the family company in time. For anyone who is interested in attending this event next year, I highly recommend it." Taylor was sponsored to the event by ARANZ Geo.

For attending and completing the programme both Taylor and Sam have earned a $1,000 scholarship to attend Massey University.

The week has a strong emphasis on personal development in confidence, leadership and team work. Boys who are interested in attending in 2014 are encouraged to talk to Head of Commerce, Mr Graeme Christey.

REMEMBRANCE SERVICE

Vigil of All Saints'

The College presents a service to remember those loved ones amongst our friends and families who have passed away. It will be an opportunity to gather as a community and reflect and meditate through music and readings.

The service will include Gabriel Fauré's moving Requiem featuring the Chapel Choir, soloists Ben Caukwell (baritone) and Zara Ballara (soprano), accompanied by a string orchestra and organ. The Requiem will be interspersed with readings and prayers appropriate to the service.

A retiring collection will be taken for the Cancer Society as part of the Choristers' Community Service for 2013.
