CHRIST'S COLLEGE
CANTERBURY

Each boy at his best.

From the Executive Principal

The end of the College year is all about creating memories, celebrating successes and honouring tradition.

After a busy examination period for senior students and the end of the academic year for juniors, the whole school comes together for Carols on the Quad. For many, this fine tradition marks the start of the Christmas season, and the selection of readings, prayers and singing is a joyful reflection of the life and culture of our school. Thank you to Robert Aburn, Nicholas Sutcliffe, Rev. Bosco Peters and all who have a hand in organising this event.

Prize-giving is where we reflect on the year that was and celebrate both individual and collective success. I would like to congratulate the boys who received prizes and other awards at both the junior and senior prize-givings, and remind all boys that if they always aspire to be at their best, whether in academic, sport, cultural or service realms, they will achieve success and have much to offer their peers and community.

It has been another excellent year in all aspects of College life. Our academic outcomes place us among the top performing schools in the country. Yet again, College students have produced wonderful performances in sports, on stage, in competitions and at cultural events. Our students shine, receiving the highest accolades in individual areas of interest and excellence across a wide range of activities.

At College, these overt measures of success are underpinned by the less tangible, but equally important, knowledge and understanding of character strengths and self-awareness. Our health and wellbeing strategy, founded on the principles of positive psychology and positive education, continues to flourish. This year, we have focused on mindfulness, an appreciation of a growth mindset and character strengths. Next year, we will add resilience and the neuroscience of wellbeing to the mix through our new MINDfit programme, designed to complement our MANifesto programme for Year 12 and 13 students. It is exciting to be part of this. I firmly believe College offers the right balance between innovation, excellence and tradition across all our programmes and the best holistic education for boys, and I thank our outstanding teaching and non-teaching staff for their commitment and contribution to everything we do.

The Leavers' Service is the final formal activity for our Year 13 students and it is most appropriate that they should end their time at College in Chapel, where it all began. We all make plans, have dreams, but no one really knows what the trajectory of their life will be. At this service, as I witnessed these young men make the transition from schoolboys to Old Boys, I couldn't help but reflect on the strong foundation they have been given and how they have the tools and, I hope, the imagination and ambition to go out and make a real difference in the world.

I wish you all the very best for the festive season and, for those who are returning in 2019, I hope you come back refreshed, reinvigorated and looking forward to another great College year.
